Jeff Cable is an inspiring speaker, no matter what aspects of photography he chooses to cover. He is best known for his artistic passion, his easy-going attitude and his ability to capture the emotion of any moment. His photography from portraits to sports to travel is exceptional. A testimonial from B & H Photo spells it out:

"Jeff Cable is a rock star in the world of photography education. He not only knows his stuff, but he has the unique gift of being able to meet his students at their level and make complicated technical information both easy to understand and entertaining. His events sell out within minutes of being posted, and his videos are among the most viewed on our website. Our attendees always leave excited about what they've learned and asking when he'll be back. Truly, any program is lucky to get him!"

Jeff Cable started his professional photography career in the San Francisco Bay Area in 2004, photographing personal events. Since then he has earned respect around the globe, and is best known for capturing photos for the US Olympic Committee. He has photographed the last five Olympic games, including the 2008 Summer Olympic Games in Beijing, the 2010 Winter Olympic Games in Vancouver, the 2012 Summer Olympics in London, the 2014 Winter Olympics in Sochi, Russia and the 2016 Summer Olympics in Rio de Janeiro.

Jeff also teaches photography to photo enthusiasts and professionals around the world, including Africa, Australia, China, Europe, South America, and across the United States. He is one of the most watched and respected instructors of photography, with millions of viewers of his free online photography classes. He also writes weekly in his photography blog, which is read by more than 60,000 people a month.
